	Machine:	Who Wants to be a Millionaire
	Release Date:	January 2000
	Cabinet:	Proteus
	Description:	When you start the game you are first given the chance to earn up to three life-lines by putting the answers to a starter question in the correct order. The three life-lines available are: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Ask the Audience</li> <li>• Ask a Friend</li> <li>• 50:50</li> </ul> The Ask the Audience option works in exactly the same way as in the TV series, except, that in this case it is the machine that is giving you a hint of what might be the correct answer. The Ask a Friend option works in a similar way to Phone a Friend, players benefiting from an allotted time period to ask a friend in the pub for help - a very popular option, particularly when a group of people are playing the game together as is so often the case with pub quiz machines. 50:50 eliminates two wrong answers from the four choices Once in the game you play for points, where various points levels equate to certain cash prize values - up to a maximum of £40 and as with the TV series, guaranteed cash prizes are awarded when certain points levels are reached. In terms of the game itself, the machine can be configured for a choice of either one game for 50p with £20 jackpot, £1 with £40 jackpot or three games for £1 with £15 jackpot
